Lefty

Generally speaking, the left-handed writer has a tendency to write by keeping his pen in an up-right position. So, Sailor has fashioned the pen point (Iridium alloy) with a pronounced round shape.

Some left-handed writers adopt a 'hooking grip' method of writing.

To accommodate this writing style Sailor has cut the left side of the pen point.

With these delicate and professional adjustments on its nib, we are confident that all left-handed writers will have a good writing performance with this special pen.
